Last Friday, Susan was asked to lead in singing the national anthem during the school assembly.

"We will sing the three stanzas in Kiswahili," Susan said. She then sang the first line of Stanza One. The other pupils joined in singing the other lines. This was done well.

After Stanza One, Susan made a mistake. She skipped Stanza Two. Instead, she sang the words of Stanza Three. Some pupils did not notice the mistake and sang along with her. Some realized the mistake and sang the words of Stanza Two. Susan wondered what was wrong.

"Hey, stop," shouted Teacher Ben, "Let's sing the correct words of Stanza Two,"

Susan found out her mistake and sang the correct words. Since that day, she has never forgotten the words of each stanza of the national anthem.
